Oxen 2019 Collection NEXO LUCE

Part of Italian lighting company Nexo Luce, Oxen is a high-end decorative lighting brand that balances contemporary aesthetics and innovative solutions. Inspired by the Bauhaus school of designs, Oxen integrates art and design through the simplicity of lines and shapes, using slender frames with glass and metal combinations. The 2019 collection that will be officially launched during Salone Del Mobile in Milan this year, draws inspiration from clean geometrical forms and focuses not only on the aesthetics of the products, but also on the artistic lighting effect they produce onto the surrounding surfaces. Colour schemes of copper, satin champagne, polished nickel are nothing new to the brand, however the ambition was to express the colour palette in beautiful textures with a touch of elegance, minimalism and eclecticism - enabling the collection to easily integrate with various hospitality and residential interiors. Oxen's Centro Stile opted for polished and satin finishes with bicolour combinations such as black/champagne, white/gold, rose/copper and more. The name chosen for each piece is derived from its shape such as Sipario, Ruota, Pergola and so on, expressed in the language where the brand's headquarter and factory are located - Italy.

The Luna product series has evolved from the idea of perfected simplicity where the light itself is the main focus of attention - as if a flame protected by an elemental glass shelter. Its half-moon inspired shape (hence, the name of the product) is realised through blown transparent glass and steel finish in polished gold. The light source positioned inside the semi-sphere is protected by a frosted glass cylinder to smoothen the lighting effect. This beautiful piece is available as a pendant light, table and floor lamps.

The Bolla series has been produced as a singular desk light available in various finishes, seamlessly combining the solid tubular body with the transparent glass shade. With its gentle luminosity and directional downlight, Bolla was created to transform the everyday desk lamp into an elegant light that expresses a bold statement by itself in any interior.

Another interesting fixture is the Strato sculptural table lamp that explores the combination of a steel body, perforated metal sheet diffuser and a marble base. The lamp inside emits a soft deflected light through a mesh casing, creating a fancy effect onto the surface. An unexpected use of marble in this almost industrial looking product gives it a distinctive detail.

The Sipario series was created as a table or wall light expressing the geometrical properties of a square shaped crystal glass plate held by a steel base. The light source positioned within the base glows all along the perimeter of this compelling decorative product, while the frame finished in copper or gold brings a distinguishing touch of refinement.

The Oxen range includes various products featuring ceiling, floor, pendant, wall and table lights. Its overall design language feels familiar and comfortable yet distinctive, which suits luxurious lounges, hotels or private residences. The fabrication process is realised by Italian master craftsmen where attention to detail and manual implementation make every single lamp a unique lighting product.

The Luna pendant by Oxen (a brand of Nexo Luce), is available in suspension, floor and table versions. The design concept behind the product evolved from the idea of perfected simplicity where the light itself is the main focus of attention - as if a flame protected by an elemental glass shield. Its half-moon inspired shape is realised through blown transparent glass and steel finished in polished gold. The light source positioned inside the semi-sphere is sheltered by a frosted glass cylinder to smooth the lighting effect. The Luna series is suitable for both contemporary and eclectic interiors.
